To support NOW with Bill Moyers, an investigative journalism program that sheds light on the issues facing our democracy by covering stories that are ignored by the mainstream media. NOW reports on issues such as money in politics, civil liberties, the environment, corporate power, media conglomeration, public health, the economy, and secrecy in government. NOW also reports on events in the arts and humanities communities that relate to a wide range of issues shaping our democracy, culture and world. NOW's goal is to cultivate a more informed, tolerant and active citizenry, a more open and democratic government and more responsible corporate governance. In 2003, NOW created a Washington bureau that reported on key policy issues, used the talents of independent producers and filmmakers and collaborated with other news organizations. In 2004 NOW will continue to cover stories on under-reported issues; cover issues in arts and humanities as well as the environment and health; strengthen its collaboration with other news organizations; and continue to educate the public about the role of media in society.
